Presentation/Poster Title:
Planning to Learn, Learning to Plan!

Presentation/Poster to be Presented at:
Research Data Access and Preservation Summit, Minneapolis, MN April 22-23, 2015

Presentation/Poster Abstract (brief description):

This poster presentation will illustrate how our team, two instructional design librarians and two research data curation librarians, applied instructional design approaches and pedagogy to create a Learning Solutions Plan (LSP) to support the library's Research Data and Curation Program (RDCP) training program implementation. The LSP instructional design component of the program establish blueprints for delivering instruction using various training methods and theories for a variety of audiences. The instructional design librarians provided consultations with research data curation librarians to identify learner needs and provide recommendations for learning support solutions ranging from traditional in-person workshops to how-to videos and FAQs delivered online. A recent library reorganization transitioned from decentralized discipline-specific libraries towards a cohesive functional organization structure. This new consolidated organizational structure led to the necessary collaboration between two library programs to deliver and support a comprehensive training plan for data management and curation.

Yes or No: Use of Human Subjects

If yes, attach appropriate university form to paper application. The process of obtaining IRB approval or exemption from subject protection regulations does not have to be completed prior to submitting your grant proposal. However, the grant cannot be awarded without evidence that you have obtained the approval or exemption.

No human subjects will be used for this project.

Yes or No: Professional Development Funds

You are expected to use or have committed all other professional development allocations before applying for the LAUC-SD Presentation/Poster Grant. Please indicate if you have used or committed all other professional development allocations?

Professional development funds have been used and the remaining balance is committed towards ALA 2015 San Francisco.
